

In the Encyclical Laudato Si', Pope Francis calls for alliances to cultivate generative dialogues. He reminds us that we cannot make theology without having a dialogue with science.

It is increasingly important to find common spaces for dialogue between theology and science, between human needs and nature's needs, between spiritual harms and ecological harms. We could say that such dialogue becomes a crucial generative experience; an experience of hope and collaboration.

It is in this context that we welcome the project, supported by the Swedish government, between the Holy See's Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development and the Stockholm Environment Institute in Rome, at the service of all change makers and the wider public.

Among the participants:

- H. E. Cardinal Michael Czerny, prefect of the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development
- Ulf R. Hansson, Director Swedish Institute of Classical Studies in Rome,
- H.E. Andrés Jato, Swedish Ambassador to the Holy See
- Måns Nilsson, Executive Director SEI
- Tomás Insua, President Laudato Si' Movement

And some change makers.
